Compassion, Caring and Improving Lives

Every year we are privileged to see the mission and values of Aspirus come to life through the Aspirus Women's Golf Classic.

Golfers, caddies, sponsors and volunteers partner with the Aspirus Health Foundation to raise funds for programs and services that heal people, promote health and strengthen our communities.

- Golfers and caddies show up in attire that makes us laugh and helps us celebrate generosity.
- Sponsors host activities on the course to create fun memories.
- Volunteers share their time and talents to ensure a positive experience for everyone.

This year, it is an honor to come together on the golf course to:

- Improve the lives of victims of sexual assault and abuse.
- Help children during the critical window of time when their brains are developing.
- Support patients and families who travel to Wausau for specialty care and need assistance with housing.

Together, we demonstrate compassion and caring through our generosity.

Thank you for your partnership in compassion, caring and improving lives through the Aspirus Women's Golf Classic.

With gratitude,

Parents grateful for family house during daughter's surgery

Learning your child needs surgery is scary. When you have to travel to receive the necessary care, the situation can become more difficult – even overwhelming. That's what local father, Ben Fischer, told us about a recent experience with his six-month-old daughter, Nella.

Nella had a condition called Craniosynostosis, which causes problems with normal brain and skull growth. She needed to have a highly-invasive surgery at a children's hospital that required the Fischers to travel in order to get Nella the specialty care she needed.

Nella Fischer

Ben recalled how difficult the whole experience was for them.

"We were in shock when we found out about the condition, and somewhat in denial," he said. "We didn't know what to expect, having our daughter undergo general anesthesia for a day-long skull surgery. It was very scary no matter how many experts assured us all it would be okay, and this type of surgery is rather routine for them."

Ben says that his family didn't have the funds to stay in a hotel room for more than a week. Luckily, the children's hospital had an affiliation with a family house where he and his family were able to stay.

"The family house was huge for us because that was one major concern we didn't have to worry about," Ben said.

"We could focus on Nella and her care, and not about where we would stay and how we would pay for all the expenses of traveling."

"It was easy access to and from the house to the hospital directly across the street," Ben said. "To this day, I'm grateful for everything, from the care to the home-like atmosphere of the family house that held my family together when it felt like life was tearing us apart."

"That is why my wife and I were so happy to learn that Aspirus would be creating a family house to serve patients and families who travel to Wausau for specialty care," Ben said. "We know that the Aspirus Family House will serve as a home away from home for many patients and families for years to come. And we love that it is located across the street from the hospital, because we know how important it was for us to be close to Nella when she was in the hospital. We look forward to touring the Aspirus Family House when it opens in January of 2020."

ASPIRUS FAMILY HOUSE

The Aspirus Family House will help support patients and families dealing with serious illness or medical crisis.

Alexa Ernst, front, along with her fellow medical students from the Medical College of Wisconsin-Central Wisconsin Campus, donate books to Aspirus Pediatrics for a literature-rich waiting room and the Reach Out and Read Program.

Reach Out and Read

Future Physicians passionate about children and their development

Alexa Ernst, a medical student with the Medical College of Wisconsin-Central Wisconsin Campus (MCW-CW) and recipient of an Aspirus Scholars award, has witnessed the importance of the Reach Out and Read program at Aspirus firsthand.

As part of her training, one of Alexa's clinical rotations was with Aspirus Pediatrics Clinic in Wausau. Here, Alexa saw the impact the program has.

"I have seen children light up when they are handed a book at their well-child checks," she said. "This is an excellent way to not only get children excited about reading, but also to encourage parents to read to their children."

As a medical student, Alexa has learned that a key source of information comes from research. Having supporting data is important to knowing whether or not a treatment is appropriate or a program like Reach Out and Read makes a difference.

"I've seen the research, which shows that for communities who participate in programs such as Reach Out and Read, parents are two-and-a-half times more likely to read to their children," Alexa said. "As a current Aspirus Scholar and future Aspirus physician, I am proud that I will be working for an organization that recognizes the importance of early childhood development. I hope that the program will continue to receive community support so that I will be able to incorporate Reach Out and Read into my future practice."

Making a difference, one child at a time.

Aspirus Scholar Program

Alexa Ernst is a medical student at the Medical College of Wisconsin-Central Wisconsin Campus and an Aspirus Scholar. The Aspirus Scholars Program provides scholarships for tuition to medical students and advanced practice clinician students, such as physician assistants and nurse practitioners.

The program connects the students to Aspirus and the communities served by Aspirus during their training. In return, students commit to future employment at Aspirus in the areas of primary care, psychiatry or general surgery.

Comforting Care During Grandmother's Final Days

Caregivers recognized as Heroes for compassion

Even in situations when you know the end is coming, losing a loved one is never easy. Vicki LaPorte experienced this firsthand in February when she lost her grandmother, who lived 102 adventurous years.

Vicki's grandmother passed away in palliative care at Aspirus Wausau Hospital, but not before she made an impression on the staff, and the staff made an impression on Vicki.

Vicki LaPorte

"My grandmother was still living independently in her own apartment and had a very active social life that included weekly card games and going out for dinner," Vicki said. "Even during her initial days on the Palliative Care Unit, her spunky nature and quick wit provided many laughs to her providers and nursing staff."

When it was clear that her grandmother didn't have much time left, Vicki stayed at the hospital day and night. She slept and showered on the Palliative Care Unit and that is when Vicki noticed that the staff there wasn't just caring for her grandmother.

"They provided me warm blankets for sleeping, daily encouragement and consolation," she said. "They allowed me to assist with my grandmother's needs and answered my unending list of questions and concerns as her life was coming to an end."

"The respect, concern and compassion provided to me and my grandmother seemed innate and created a very warm, caring and comforting atmosphere."

Because of the empathy, compassion and devotion shown during her grandmother's end-of-life care, Vicki decided to honor her grandmother's caregivers with an Aspirus Hero Award.

"All health care staff that provide 24-hour care are amazing in their own determination to care for others," Vicki said. "The respect, concern and compassion provided to me and my grandmother seemed innate and created a very warm, caring and comforting atmosphere."

The Aspirus Hero Program is a way to thank people who make a difference during your visit or stay at Aspirus. Heroes can be named by making a charitable gift of any size that helps support community health initiatives that improve the quality of life for people in our community.
